Rule: There are 4 default cards on the board prospectively in 4 different areas: Gold, Silver, Copper, and Iron. Each area represents different values: $1, $5, $10, $50.

1st round: Every player will have 1 card in their hand. They have to compare the card in their hand with the default cards. If their card is smaller and closer to the default card, they can place the card beside it and collect the money back. When the green card is put down, the orange card will be collected away and leave green cards on the board, and enter the next round.

Next round: similar to the last round. But if someone in the last round collected the money from the gold area but couldn't place their card in any area, he has to return $50 to the board.

As the game goes on, each player will have more and more money in their hands. When they get money up to $100, they can exchange $100 bill and return their change to each area.

Who wins the most money, who wins the game when the cards are sent out.
